DORMAN TO LEAD EASTER SEAL SALE

Movement Begins One Week Hence To Raise Funds For Georgia's Crippled Children

District Easter Seal Chairman Thomas M. Johnson, of Savannah, has announced that the Alfred Dorman, of Statesboro, has been appointed chairman for Bulloch county. C. B. McAllister, also of Statesboro, has been appointed treasurer.

The 1952 Easter Seal appeal, sponsored by the Georgia Society for Crippled Children, will begin March 31, and extend through Easter Sunday, April 13.

State Chairman Mills B. Lane Jr., of Atlanta, had this to say to the 100,000 crippled children in the state: "The great majority of these children have no means of receiving treatment of any kind. Only a comparative few are being treated by visiting agencies and rehabilitated for useful, happy, future lives."

"The new Georgia Society for Crippled Children is organized, not to duplicate the splendid work now being done, but to undertake to provide broader service to all."

"I visualize the society as potentially the greatest force we can have to simplify and guide handicapped children's work and bring into concert pitch and harmony private and public welfare and health groups."

Easter Seal funds will help make this possible through the seven treatment centers already established in the state, and through others to be added as money becomes available.

Last Sabbath this glister set in one of the vanished pews at Asona Methodist church. That modern, recently remodeled building was being given a sort of induction into service. Oldsters and youngsters were invited to attend and share in the experience.

The man who at that date was being given a babe in arms—if he was even living at that time—was invited to make the formal address for the regular pastor, who, unexpectedly on that morning was carried to a hospital for serious treatment. Never has there been, we dare say, a more powerful and logical appeal made to an attentive congregation than that brother, Dr. Fred Turner, made, as we sat—and rummaged. (But it would possibly be an error to make this statement in his hearing, lest his human head might start to expand, as preachers' heads sometimes do—even as do others.)

And while the services, beautiful in extreme, with young boys and girls in shrouds sang the righteous melodies—old men and women, gray haired and bowed in solemn appreciation—this memory went back to that other day when this lad put the coin in the hat and wept! But memory raises another picture. Grandma Kilgore, long a minister's wife, and her oldest daughter—this writer's mother—sat in eager solemnity. Preacher Castel reached his high point, and the fountain overflowed—the grand mother shouted as she arose to her feet, and then this writer's mother shouted—and this boy, well, it was a stirring time, you may know. He cried again, even more than when he had started to drop the coin in the hat out of time!

And last Sunday as the exercises at the new Anona church were in progress, memory had brought back those long-ago episodes which can never fade from memory. Where were those old-timers who had comprised that congregation in other years? Just in the rear of the building is a fenced-off ground with green trees and blooming flowers, and marble slabs pointing upward. There was not sitting in that congregation, so far as this writer could recognize one single person who had been there on that other day so long ago. Where shall we meet them—and when?

And that was last Sabbath at which spot we had slipped away for a pleasure of living in the past. Was the going a complete failure? Indeed, not! Middle-aged men and women, some past that stage of life, gave warm hand pressure and a cheering word of good will.

Shouting Time Again At Indian Pass Church?

Backward, turn backward, Oh, Time in thy flight, And make me a child again Just for tonight.

Sorrows and joys rarely come singly. Sometimes we have to wait for the repeat, but given time, it's sure to come.

It was preaching day at Indian Rocks Methodist church in the year about 1877. This writer was a youngster of around five years. My father had been put and a new boy's hat. He sat manfully by the side of his father on the men's side of the church. (There was a dividing line in the center of the church; those days, and the ladies wore bonnets and skirts, and sat on the women's side of the church.) Rev. Castel was preaching, and he was about to begin his sermon. Then, as now, the preacher asked pay in advance, and the stewards were about to start from the front with the plates. This boy's father, generous to a degree—the always gave something—placed this timid lad a coin and whispered, "Put that in the hat." The lad thought he meant right now, and he slipped off the seat and started toward the hat-passers, with his coin. He held it, as he was embarrassed that he broke into audible weeping. (Every time from that long-ago date to this present moment he feels sort of sorrowful when he drops a coin in the plate!)

That was three-quarters of a century ago.

Last Sabbath this glister set in one of the vanished pews at Asona Methodist church. That modern, recently remodeled building was being given a sort of induction into service. Oldsters and youngsters were invited to attend and share in the experience.

The man who at that date was being given a babe in arms—if he was even living at that time—was invited to make the formal address for the regular pastor, who, unexpectedly on that morning was carried to a hospital for serious treatment. Who Creates Jobs?

WE HEAR MUCH about the importance of labor, which is quite as it should be. But we hear little about the importance of the stockholder—the man or woman who makes labor jobs and living standards possible.

As an example, take the food and grocery manufacturing industry—an enterprise which serves almost every American family every day of its life. A study was recently made of twenty-five representative companies within the industry, ranging from the large to the small. In the majority of cases, there are more stockholders than employees. For the group as a whole, there are 586,150 stockholders and 309,073 employees—close to a two-to-one majority. And 52 per cent of the stockholders are women.

Moreover, these stockholders aren't a bunch of bloated male and female plutocrats, who sit back and rake in fat profits. In the case of one of the largest corporations in the group, 95 per cent of the stockholders own less than 100 shares and more than half less than 25 shares. The companies average a profit of something like 3 cents on each dollar of sales—which hardly looks as if the customer was getting a gouging.

In short, the stockholders, the people who create jobs, are just as important to our national life as the workers, the managers, or any other group. If we discourage investment by unfair and punitive taxation, or in any other way, we will simply dry up the sources of the money which is the lifeblood of the economy. Then labor will be his hardest of all.

The Tax Threat

AT VARIOUS TIMES proposals have been made for placing reasonable limits on the amount of taxes that can be levied on the American people by the Federal Government. The best of these was introduced last September by Congressman Chauncey W. Reed, of Illinois, ranking minority member of the House Judiciary Committee. It takes the form of a "Joint Resolution Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the United States Relative to Taxes on Income, Inheritance and Gifts."

As if this wasn't bad enough, the new proposed budget, as offered to Congress envisions a deficit of over $22,000,000,000 during the next two years. And apparently the only solution is more taxes—even though taxation takes about one-third of the whole national income now. There is no way to get around this. The only way to get around this is to cut the tax rate on income to 25 per cent. There are but two exceptions, both of which are obviously necessary in these discordant times. First, by a three-fourths majority, Congress may raise the maximum rate to 40 per cent for periods, each successive or otherwise, not exceeding one year each. Second, in event of a war which creates a national emergency as grave as to necessitate such action to avoid national disaster, Congress could entirely suspend the limitation on taxation, also by a three-fourths vote. All of this would apply to businesses as well as individuals.

Mr. Reed's amendment would also deprive Congress of the power to impose death and gift taxes, leaving this means of taxation exclusively to the states where competition would tend to keep the rates within reasonable bounds.

The only way to cut the cost of government is to take some of the money away from the bureaucrats and the department heads and all the rest of the power-hungry politicians. And that can be effectively done only when the basic law of the land makes taxation beyond a certain level impossible. Mr. Reed's carefully conceived proposal would achieve this, and at the same time take care of a real emergency. It is difficult to see how anyone who honestly favors efficient, economical government could logically oppose it.

Excessive taxation can destroy a nation from within. We are at the danger point now. The Reed Amendment is an excellent solution to our greatest domestic problem.

Backward or Forward?

ONE OF THE MOST effective inflation dampers is greater production. It is an axiom that when any article is in short supply the price tends to rise, while when it is abundant the price tends to decline. This is the classic working of a supply-and-demand competitive economic system.

It is also axiomatic that anything which retards it harms its interest. Unfortunately, a good many of us, including men on the policy-making level of the government, seem to have forgotten this simple fact.

The much-discussed and much-misunderstood meat situation is a good case in point. Last year, per capita meat consumption was below the levels of both 1949 and 1950. This was very largely the result of stringent restrictions and regulations which seriously interfered with the normal operation of the great and complete meat industry.

At the present time the meat outlook is favorable. This year's supplies promise to be substantially greater than in 1951 when the government controls so discouraged cattle marketing that live cattle numbers were built up by about 6,000,000 head and a very substantial volume of cattle was put into feed lots to be fattened to higher grades.

However, an orderly and continued increase in meat production will not and cannot be attained unless producers see a chance to make a fair profit in return for the work they do and the risks they take. That goes both for the farmer with a few head of livestock and for the big rancher with thousands. In other words, unwise and inequitable tax and regulatory changes which change a favorable outlook into an unfavorable one. When an enterprise is politically hamstringed, it goes backward, not ahead and the consumer is the principal sufferer.

What Communists Want

IN A RECENT statement in the Tax Review, a forceful writer, Gordon Grand Jr., said:

"In less than four decades, the individual income tax rate has risen from one per cent with a maximum rate of seven per cent on net income of $500,000 and over—to a starting rate of 22.2 per cent, with a combined normal and surtax rate of 92 per cent on taxable income of $200,000 and over!"

"In the space of less than 40 years, the corporate income tax rate has risen from one per cent to a combined normal, surtax and excess profits marginal rate of 82 per cent. The number of individuals subject to income taxes has risen from less than 400,000 to 55,000,000."

As if this wasn't bad enough, the new proposed budget, as offered to Congress envisions a deficit of over $22,000,000,000 during the next two years. And apparently the only solution is more taxes—even though taxation takes about one-third of the whole national income now. There is no way to get around this. The only way to get around this is to cut the tax rate on income to 25 per cent. There are but two exceptions, both of which are obviously necessary in these discordant times. First, by a three-fourths majority, Congress may raise the maximum rate to 40 per cent for periods, each successive or otherwise, not exceeding one year each. Second, in event of a war which creates a national emergency as grave as to necessitate such action to avoid national disaster, Congress could entirely suspend the limitation on taxation, also by a three-fourths vote. All of this would apply to businesses as well as individuals.

Mr. Reed's amendment would also deprive Congress of the power to impose death and gift taxes, leaving this means of taxation exclusively to the states where competition would tend to keep the rates within reasonable bounds.

The only way to cut the cost of government is to take some of the money away from the bureaucrats and the department heads and all the rest of the power-hungry politicians. And that can be effectively done only when the basic law of the land makes taxation beyond a certain level impossible. Mr. Reed's carefully conceived proposal would achieve this, and at the same time take care of a real emergency. It is difficult to see how anyone who honestly favors efficient, economical government could logically oppose it.

Here's Real Inflation!

WE ALL TALK about how the prices charged for various articles have doubled or trebled over a period of years. But when it comes to inflation, one thing has all the rest licked to death—and that thing is taxes.

As to the U. S. News & World Report's tax take of the Federal Government alone in the fiscal year ending in 1952 for every man, woman and child in the country. That is about the size of the average per capita income in 1931. It is 120 times as much as was the tax take in 1900. In spite of this incredible burden of taxation, the government, according to official estimates, will still be more than $14,000,000,000 short of meet-

Needy Children Are Asking For Homes

(By MISS SARA HALL, Supervisor of Public Welfare.)

Little Elisabeth needs a home in Bulloch county. Elisabeth is just a tiny little infant having been in this world only a few months. The welfare department is seeking a foster home for her. She needs the care, protection and attention that can be offered only by home life if she is to grow into a worthwhile citizen.

She is a tiny infant with just a little golden fuzz on her head. Her mother is ill and there are no relatives who can care for her just now. She needs the substitute care of a mother who has had experience in dealing with young babies and a father who will accept her as a member of the family.

The welfare department will pay for the baby at $13.50 a day, and in addition medical care and clothing will be furnished. These expenses are handled by the Department of Public Welfare, although in many cases parents or relatives contribute toward this.

Do you feel that you might share your home with little Elisabeth for awhile?

The welfare department also has other children of different ages who need this kind of care. Families who are interested are asked to contact the Bulloch County Department of Public Welfare, telephone 580.
